KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 10.— Albert B.
Corlett, a young man 20 years old, left his home at Independence, Ia., on the 15th day of April, suffering from a bad attack of Oklahoma fever. He entered the promised land with the boomers, but was soon carred of his malady and came to Kansas City. Here he had a draft cashed at one of the banks for $50, and on the 20th of April wrote a postal card to his father informing him of his whereabouts. Since that time nothing has been heard from him. A BRIDGE BUILDER'S TRUST. St. Joseph, Mo., July 10.-A few days ago the county surveyor advertised for bids for the bailding of eighteen bridges. The bids were opened last Saturday, and though about twenty in number there was little difference. The county court was at once struck with the idea that a combination was in force and promptly rejected all the bids. It has since been learned that there is a trust among the learned that there is a trust among the bridge builders for the purpose of keeping prices at the maximum. The territory embraced by the trust is Southern Iowa and Northeastern Missouri. There is hardly a bridge builder of any note in this territory who does not belong to the trust. Regular meetings are held and a scale of prices agreed upon. A bond is given by each member providing a severe penalty for any violations of the agreements. The secretary is consulted in event of a dispute. Every bridge builder in the territory is soil ited to join the trust, and if he tory is soli ited to join the trust, and if he tory is son need to join the trust, and it he refuses a systematic warfare is begun on him which usually ends in a victory for the trust. When bidding is to be done the builders who are to do it meet and agree on a set of prices. The trust is said to have a membership of about 150.

Friday the Kickapoo chiefs will be reasoned with in this city. The land owned by them is in Brown county, is most valuable and will sell readily at high prices. ### ELECTRIC EXECUTION.

Bourke Cockran's Inquiry Into the Effect of Currents. NEW YORK, July 10.-Eleven o'clock this morning found the lawyers all gathered in Bourke Cockran's big cool office in the Equitable building, ready to 20 on before Referee Becker and find out whether execution of the death sentence on William Kemmler by electricity will or will not be a cruel and unusual punishment. Harold P. Brown, the young electrical expert who thinks so highly of the "alternating current" for killing purposes, was there pleasant and smiling. Lawyer Cockran had on a big black alpaca coat which came pretty nearly to his knees and which made him look like a parson. Referee Becker wore a flannel shirt. Eibridge T. Gerry, chairman of the state commission which devised the electric killing of murderers, telegraphed from Newport that he could not think of coming back to New York in this weather to testify. Mr. Cockran said that Commodore Gerry ought to come back, and Referee Becker telegraphed to him that he ought to Then Mr. Brown took the stand and Mr. Cockran resumed his researches in physics.

Mr. Brown said that he knew of ninety-one people who had been killed by electric light currents. He did not know of a case where a man got the full benefit of an electric light current and survived. He had experimented to find ont which was the deadlier, the alternating or the continuous current. The Westinghouse company used the alternating current.

"I have in this matter to act in the same mainer as if the prisoner was brought before me sitting as a magistrate or justice of the peace, charged with an indictable offense committed in Canada."

The judge then reviewed the evidence and said that it to him supplied such a strong presumption of guilt that be could not take upon himself the responsibility of setting Burke free as he would do if he did not commit it. He, therefore, in the terms of the act, committed Burke to the nearest jail to await extradition. The prisoner stood up while the commitment was pronounced. Burke was then removed to jail.

An application will be made to the department of justice at Ottawa at once for flurke's extradition, but the prisoner will be given fifteen days' grace in which to appeal from Judge Saine's decision.
